Meanderings

Believe it or not, I have a copy of "Touring With Towser" which is no more or less than a hotel guide for dogs, or rather for the guidance of dog owners showing what hostilities provide accommodations for dogs.

I note that some of the larger hotels in the big cities are included in the list.

I have seen a few dogs, on leash, being led about hotel lobbies and corridors, eventually taken upon elevators to become a "guest" in a hotel room.

I also have noted some of the dogs stop to scratch, and then I know why some hotels may have fleas!

Curious to know whether anyone around Washington C. H. might have known "The Babe", I conducted an informal search just after Babe Ruth's death. No one knew him very well, but Mike Helfrich had met and talked with him.

The occasion was in Cincinnati in 1933 when the Yankees were playing a demonstration series with the Reds.

"Bubbles" Hargraves, who used to be catcher for the Cincinnati Reds had started a restaurant there and Mike was there for a little session with Lou Preser and Ed Rickey and some of the Reds when Babe came in with some of his boys.

"The Babe" was a square shooter," Mike recalled. "He never bragged and didn't like to take credit for the things he did. He take credit for the things he did. He seemed like a quiet fellow but he kidded around with the best of them and had a good line of baseball yarns."

Ruth came up the hard way, as a boy he was poor and an orphan. After he had made the grade, he didn't forget it, either, Mike said, and that was his reputation. There was surprisingly little publicity, considering Babe Ruth's fame for his work with underprivileged children. Such was his modest way.

Mike Helfrich is now a retired restaurant proprietor. Before the war he ran a training camp for ball players in New Holland. He still likes to attend games and listen to them over the radio. In his baseball playing days, Mike played both semi-pro and pro ball and was once short stop for the Baltimore Orioles.

Major Crackdown On Action of Unions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—(P)—Labor unions smarted today under the first major crackdown on union behavior by the National Labor Relations Board.

The five-man board headed by Paul M. Herzog ruled unanimously last night that hiring halls operated on the Great Lakes by the CIO National Maritime Union are illegal under the Taft-Hartley law.

In so doing, the board created several legal precedents that extend far beyond the shipping industry.

The board found the union, President Joseph Curran and six other officers guilty of two unfair labor practices against four tanker companies.

It ordered them to drop their demands for continuation of the hiring halls. And especially it ordered them not to call a strike for that purpose as they did last May.

Unfilled Car Orders To Reach 4,500,000

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19—(P)—George T. Christopher, president of the Packard Motor Co., predicts there will be 4,500,000 unfilled orders for new cars when Jan. 1, 1949 rolls around.

The Detroit motor executive, here for a regional dealers meeting, told reporters last night that steel shortages would prevent the demand for new automobiles from being filled "at any foreseeable date."

Democrats To Meet

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19—(P)—Date for the state Democratic convention will be set at a meeting of the Democratic state central committee in Columbus Aug. 25. State Chairman Eugene H. Hanhart said yesterday. He said Rep. Michael J. Kirwan of Youngstown will meet Democratic Ohio congressional candidates here Sept. 1 and 2.

No Local Option Vote In Fayette This Year

Time For Making Application For Various Ballots Is Announced

There will be no wet and dry balloting in Fayette County at the general election in November, although earlier reports indicated that petitions would be filed by WCTU members or others, in some of the districts in the county.

August 4 was the last day for filing local option petitions, or C. & D. permit petitions and for filing nomination petitions, Harold G. McLean clerk of the board, said Thursday.

There has been no selection of a candidate by the Democratic Central Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of Eddie L. Jones, who withdrew as a candidate for the office of clerk or courts, to take a position in the Washington C. H. Post Office. This leaves Mrs. Dorothy West, present incumbent, a clear field.

The following interesting data regarding filing applications for ballots by members of the armed forces, and others, and also other data pertaining to the forthcoming election, was prepared by Clerk McLean:

Friday Sept. 3—Armed service ballots applications may be made by any person in the armed service either in person or by writing to the clerk of the board of elections or any near relative may make application for him.

Sept. 15th—Appointment of Judges and Clerks. The Board will appoint six competent electors, resident of such precinct, four judges and two clerks to serve for the period of one year. Not more than two judges and one clerk shall be members of the same political party. The various township and precinct central committees of the Republican and the Democratic parties make the recommendations to the board of elections for the appointment of the judges and clerks.

Sept. 15—Last day for the taxing authority of any sub-division to file resolutions asking for a vote on the question of a levy of tax in excess of the 10 mill limitation.

Sept. 23—Last day for any sub-division to file a resolution asking for a vote on a bond issue.

Sunday, October 3 to Thursday, October 28, 6:30 P. M. Application for absent voters ballots.

Sept. 23—Last day for the taxing authority of any sub-division to file resolutions asking for a vote on the question of a levy of tax in excess of the 10 mill limitation.

Sept. 23—Last day for any sub-division to file a resolution asking for a vote on a bond issue.

Large markets and chains reported that sales were 14 to 16 percent ahead of last year in dollars, indicating that they still were averaging somewhat more tonnage than a year ago. At the same time independent food merchants' sales stayed ahead of last year, but physical turnover was lower.

Says Loyalty Review Program Is Success

Confidential Files Still Not Open To Investigators

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—(P)—President Truman said flatly today the government's loyalty review program is a complete success.

Mr. Truman took issue at his news conference with criticism of his administration stemming from the congressional investigation of Communist spy rings.

He repeated his previous claim that hearings by Senate and House committees have produced no information not already in the possession of the FBI and presented to a federal grand jury.

The president flatly accused the House un-American activities committee of infringing the bill of rights in its inquiry into alleged Communism within the government.

He said the only two people whose names have been brought into the inquiry as suspected Communists already were under indefinite leave before the hearing started.

Mr. Truman said there is a difference between the confidential files of federal employees and their employment records. He made clear once again that the confidential files will not be made available to Congressional committees.

The president's reference was to efforts of Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) and other GOP leaders to obtain confidential files of government employees suspected or under investigation for alleged disloyalty. Mr. Truman has directed executive departments to withhold such records from the committees.

Mr. Truman made his comment when a reporter asked whether there has been any change in his dispute with Ferguson, chairman of a Senate investigating committee.

The necessary records, Mr. Truman said, always have been available.

It was learned from another source that Whitaker Chambers has not been a witness before a federal grand jury in New York City investigation espionage. Chambers has acknowledged to the House committee that he was a Communist from 1924-1937 and worked with a Communist underground in Washington.

The justice department has declined to comment on this in any way, repeating that it will not discuss proceedings still in progress before a grand jury.

The Congressional spy investigators are going ahead with their search for new evidence. They said they had lined up three new witnesses for secret testimony before the House committee.

The committee also said that Alger Hiss, former state department official accused of being part of a pre-war Red underground in Washington, has refused to submit at this time to a lie detector test.

Hiss has denied time and again under oath that he even was a Communist. He now heads the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

Florida Wants Man

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29—(P)—Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida yesterday asked that Fred M. Fox, 21, be returned to the Florida road gang from which he escaped last June. Gov. Thomas J. Herbert said he had received an extradition request signed by Caldwell. Fox, arrested on a fugitive warrant in Cleveland, is fighting extradition. A hearing on the case will be held soon.

showed little signs of declining, wholesale butter prices dropped for three consecutive days on the New York mercantile exchange. Seasonal factors, big storage stocks, consumer resistance and lessening in government demand for dried milk were among reasons given. The price of grade AA butter fell more than five cents at the wholesale level to the lowest point since last March.

Three Ohioans Are Killed in Crash of Plane

Lancaster Men Meet Horrible Death Near Marion

MARION, Aug. 19—(P)—Three residents of Lancaster were killed today when their four-place Stinson plane crashed and burned on the Herbert Lichtenberger farm, seven miles south of here.

The dead were identified by the state highway patrol as:

Ellsworth H. Norris, 43, pilot and an instructor at Lancaster airport.

John F. Timmons, 44, vice president of the Lancaster Lens Company.

J. Neal Thompson, 43, sales manager of the Lancaster Lens Company.

The plane left Lancaster at 6:30 A. M. with Detroit as its destination. It crashed at 7:05 A. M. The bodies were burned almost beyond recognition.

The patrol said the private plane was owned by Pearl Jenkins of Lancaster.

Witnesses said the pilot apparently was trying to make an emergency landing during a sudden fog that rose during the early morning.

The ship, trying for a meadow, came down a quarter mile short and only 20 feet from a 20-acre corn field. It nosed over against the fence and burned.

Russian Teacher Under Oxygen Tent

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(P)—The Russian woman school teacher who leaped from a third-floor window of the Soviet Consulate was under an oxygen tent and reported sinking today.

After a week of international arguments, the Soviet consul general has been invited to send a surgeon of his own choice for consultation on the teacher, Mrs. Oksana Stepanovna Kosenkina.

A bulletin issued at Roosevelt Hospital at 5 A. M. (EST) reported the teacher's condition as critical and unchanged after a restless night of irregular sleep. Her temperature remained at 103. Her pulse was 100, a drop from 104 recorded at midnight, and her respiration was 32, down from 35 at midnight. The midnight bulletin said she had slept for long intervals in the late evening.

Mrs. Kosenkina, 52, who suffered multiple fractures and other injuries in her leap a week ago today, has been given several blood transfusions. She was placed under the oxygen tent yesterday.

Her physician, Dr. Grant Pennoyer, telephoned to Soviet Consul General Yakov M. Lomakin last night and offered to have him name a surgeon for consultation with Pennoyer and other hospital doctors.

Lomakin received the suggestion courteously, Dr. Pennoyer said, declared he was anxious to confer personally with Dr. Pennoyer and agreed to a meeting today.

Vets Warned Not To Lose Checks

Losses Reported To Bonus Office

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19—(P)—Ohio's World War II veterans were cautioned today to "take good care not to lose your bonus checks."

Director Chester W. Goble of the World War II compensation fund advised all of the more than 6,000 veterans now daily receiving bonus checks to take immediate steps to endorse properly and cash their checks as soon as possible.

"Last week we had more than 20 reports of checks lost through carelessness," the director stated, "and there have been more than 100 such cases to date. We have six cases of suspected forgeries."

"All checks," he emphasized, "must be endorsed personally by the person to whom the check is issued."

Since World War II compensation checks are payable to living persons only, any check issued to an applicant who has died since filing application, must be returned to the World War II compensation fund without endorsement.

This applies both to applicants as living veterans and to the next of kin of deceased Ohio veterans.

Once a check is lost or stolen, Goble explained, it is necessary to stop payment on the check. Then, after the applicant has posted bond in twice the amount of the check and 60 days after the date of the original check, a duplicate check can be issued.

In cases where the original check is found before a duplicate check is issued, the compensation fund office must be notified so that a release of the stop payment order can be made.

Goble said that as of last night, a total of 366,695 bonus checks had been mailed to veterans.

Good Samaritan Lost This One And Pays Bill

SHAWNEE, Aug. 19—(P)—Dwight Bowen, 18, isn't so sure today it pays to be a Good Samaritan.

The effort cost him $1.50 yesterday, here's how:

He saw a large dog seize a prize game rooster belonging to Dr. George Myers, a dentist-neighbor. Bowen threw a stone at the dog. The stone hit the dog, who dropped the rooster. The stone ricocheted from the dog's back and hit a window of Woodrow Thomas' residence nearby.

Bowen paid $1.50 to replace the window pane.

Taft-Hartley Act Called 'Time Bomb'

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19—(P)—The Taft-Hartley labor act is a "time bomb" set to explode after the November elections, says Joseph D. Keenan, political action director of the American Federation of Labor.

Keenan, a former member of the War Production Board, told the Cleveland AFL last night that if the T-H law remained in force "our organization and our way of operating are gone forever."

"I warn you this act is a time bomb," he declared. "The fuse has not been pulled, and it won't be until after the November election. The National Association of Manufacturers has told its members to hold off until then."

Keenan said the 80th Congress had "lulled us to sleep" with promises of "ice cream for breakfast," but asserted it had delivered the country's policies into the hands of the N.A.M.

Farewell Rites Held For King of Baseball

Over 100,000 Fans File Past Bier While Body Was In Yankee Stadium

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—(P)—The last, formal farewells were offered today to Babe Ruth, the big guy with the quick grin and the powerful wrists.

Roman Catholic services were held at 10 A. M. in St. Patrick's Cathedral on Fifth Avenue.

Then the man whose spectacular baseball career helped make the game a million-dollar sport was laid to rest in a vault at the gate of Heaven Cemetery in suburban Westchester County.

Although the cathedral was the scene of the last rites for Ruth, it was in Yankee Stadium—site of his greatest exploits—that the average man-in-the-bleachers paid final respects to the mighty Yankee batsman.

More than 100,000 persons—many of whom came from points hundreds of miles distant—filed through the rotunda of the stadium where the Babe lay in state for two days.

There was space for about 5,000 of them to stand or sit in the cathedral, where Francis Cardinal Spellman officiated at a requiem high mass.

Only a small section of the church was reserved for members of Ruth's immediate family, the honorary pallbearers and the Yankee baseball team.

Ruth's family said the Babe wanted most of the church left open to the general public—the kind of people who filled the bleachers when he still was wearing his big No. 3.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey headed the honorary pallbearers. Others were Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, where the Babe began his big-league career with his big-league career with (Please turn to Page Fourteen)

Claims He Bought Auto For $567 Less in England

LAKE ORION, Mich., Aug. 19—(P)—Dick Wells, a Commercial Airlines pilot who discovered a quick way to get delivery on a new car, claimed today he saved $567 by buying it through a dealer in London—4,000 miles away. Officials of the Studebaker Corp. at South Bend, Ind., confirmed his story of the strange transaction.

But they denied that the 1948 model was sold for any less than he would have paid his regular dealer here.

Wells told this story: He placed his order for a new

Danube Control In Spotlight

International Muddle Still Growing

(By The Associated Press)
Count Folke Bernadotte informed the United Nations today the situation in Jerusalem between fighting Jews and Arabs gradually is getting out of hand.

He asked for prompt action—which might be warnings or sanctions—to prevent a general resumption of hostilities throughout Palestine. The count, mediator for Palestine, said both sides "have come deliberately to ignore the authority of the United Nations."

Bernadotte said it is "very doubtful" if Jerusalem can be demilitarized any time soon.

The United States borrowed Russia's favorite charge of "imperialism" and threw it back at the Kremlin in comment on the Soviet-dictated Danube River agreement. The three western powers and Austria refused to sign the accord, which reserves full power of the waterway to the Russian "puppet states," as the state department called the Communist countries.

"The unhappy subservience of the Danubian peoples to Soviet imperialism was never more clearly manifest than at this conference," the state department said. It added that actions of the Soviet delegation to Belgrade "have made evident the determination of the Soviet Union to perpetuate its economic and political enslavement of the Danubian peoples."

Moscow conferences between Foreign Minister Molotov and the three western envoys may end tomorrow. There was no suggestion that the Berlin blockade would be lifted. Indeed, the differences in the unhappy city became even more pronounced. Berlin itself expected scant, if any, results.

Russian newspapers in Berlin asserted that "contradictory attitudes" of the western allies were bogging down the Kremlin talks. Propaganda broadcasts against the western powers and Berlin's anti-Communist government were intensified.

The elected Berlin government considered issuing its own currency for the city or making western marks the exclusive currency for western Berlin. Communist newspapers demanded "immediate and unconditional" withdrawal of the western marks and a return of united government for the city.

The British used their most scorching language in denouncing as "pernicious" and without legal basis the Russian dismissal of the German city coal administrator.

The Romanian news agency Rador accused Premier Marshal Tito and others in the Yugoslav government of treason and "horrible murder" in the death of Gen. Arso Jovanic, former chief of staff of the Yugoslav army. He was killed Aug. 12 trying to escape to Romania. Rador said a reign of terror exists in Yugoslavia, which has been in bad odor with Russia and her puppet states since the Cominform attack on Tito.

Greek officials and the American chief of the U. S. military advisory planning group said the summer offensive against Greek Communists in the Grammos Mountains near Albania is nearly over. The last 5,000 rebels have been hemmed into an area of nine square miles and are expected to flee into Communist Albania.

Reward Extended In Murder Case

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 19—(P)—A $1,600 reward offered for the solution of the mysterious slaying of Dr. George Obriest a year ago was extended today for another six months.

The reward offer was scheduled to expire tonight. A three-man committee of the Hempstead Academy of Medicine said, "we feel contributors will be willing to keep the money posted in the hope that the slayer or slayers eventually will be found."

A total of $3,206 was contributed by citizens and business houses following the ambush slaying of the 45-year-old physician in his back yard. Half was posted for a reward, the other half set aside for use by the doctors' committee for investigation expenses. Dr. Chester H. Allen said $551 had been spent so far.

Police Chief Hugh Rudity and Sheriff Earl C. Brandel said they were continuing their investigations but had not even found a motive for the killing yet.

Housing Expediter To Warn Veterans

George Campbell, Washington C. H. rent advisory board member, has been informed that the national housing expediter, Tighe E. Woods, will give two national network radio broadcasts this weekend to explain the major points of the veterans' compliance program.

The enforcement machinery is being set in motion and the success of the vital program depends upon how well the housing board can inform the veteran of his right in cases where he believes he was "chiseled," Campbell said.

The Columbus area office of the rent advisory board has already announced that it will regard as its major concern instances in which veterans have been charged more than the sale price ceiling set by the Federal Housing Administration and cases in which houses do not meet specifications or have structural deficiencies.

In the two broadcasts—one called "Veterans' Advisor" which can be heard Saturday at 1:30 P. M. over WLW and the other called "Veteran Wants To Know" which can be heard on WHKC, Columbus, at 1:45 P. M. Sunday—Woods will spell out in detail the specific types of veterans' housing violations that the office of the Housing Expediter is permitted and obligated to deal with.

Fayette Ranks 69th In Ohio Bond Drive

Fayette County ranked 69th of the 88 Ohio counties in percentage of their quota in the bond drive which ended July 17, according to the U. S. Treasury Department's count.

The sales recorded include all E, F and G bonds sold to individuals, soldiers and industrial investors, but do not include those sold to banks, the report said.

The report, sent to Richard P. Rankin, chairman of the Fayette County bond drive, disclosed that final count on the amount collected in Fayette County was $222,901.

this point is not direct testimony about the operations of a Communist underground in Washing-

Nixon (R-Calif.) calls "spadework" designed to help dig up "the truth or the falsity" of the controversy involving Alger Hiss and Whittaker Chambers. This is a prelude to public hearings, set for next Wednesday, at which Hiss and Chambers will be heard. Arriving here by train from New York, where he put in some spadework himself, Nixon told reporters late yesterday that three former government officials have been put under subpoena. He said they are New Yorkers who will be brought here for questioning before the end of the week. He said they are people who are "supposed to know" both Hiss and Chambers.

Hiss and Chambers are two key figures in the hearings the House un-American activities committee has been holding.

VFW Post Denies Ad Soliciting

Warning came from the Washington C. H. O. E. Hardway VFW post Thursday that it is not in any way connected with advertising being solicited in Washington C. H. Wednesday and Thursday.

At least one person was here Thursday soliciting for a veteran's newspaper. He approached several businessmen who were asked to buy advertising space in the newspaper. One businessman who saw the paper said it had no news of VFW or AMVET organizations, two local groups which the solicitor claimed he represented.

Both Police Chief D. Vaiden Long and VFW Post Commander Orville H. Conaway warned businessmen and others that there is no local connection they know of with this soliciting. The Chamber of Commerce has not heard from these solicitors and they do not have its approval, according to the executive secretary's office.

Grain Markets

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—Grains made a recovery in late dealings on the Board of Trade today, reducing or completely canceling early losses. The rally was led by September corn, which spurred a few cents above the previous close on active short covering. Despite the action of September corn, the bulk of the market had a weak undertone. July wheat broke more than seven cents at one time to a new season low and was not able to get back much of the lost ground. Losses in other wheat contracts were limited to fractions.

An early sell-off sent all land and soybean, as well as December and May corn contracts, to new seasonal lows.

By FRED J. ZUSY
(For James Marlow)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — (AP)—A major step forward in the building of factory-made houses awaits only approval by the attorney general.

It involves setting aside 59,000 tons of steel for six months under a voluntary allocation plan already approved by the steel industry and Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

This wouldn't build many houses, viewed in the light of tremendous overall needs. Estimates are it would provide materials for only 8,000 or so dwellings.

But those backing the infant industry, blocked up to now by inability to get steel supplies, say the plan would let it show how it can make "better houses at lower prices."

Tighe E. Woods, housing expert, says the all-steel factory-made house is "the first real attempt" at cracking the housing shortage.

A few have been turned out and put in use, but not enough to make any dent in the demand for homes.

Lustron Corp. of Columbus, Ohio, has the biggest plant, with a capacity of more than 150 assembly-line homes a day.

But Lustron, like other producers—and there aren't many—has no previous customer tieup with the steel industry. It has found it very difficult to buy the metal.

Once the attorney general's office says the agreement doesn't violate any anti-trust laws, the 59,000 tons may be made available to Lustron and the others. Lustron is expected to get the biggest slice, although definite allocations have not been made. Five other concerns will share.

A commerce department spokesman says that once the attorney general acts "we'll move quickly." Sawyer said previously that first amounts will be small so as not to cause a sudden impact on the steel industry.

Sawyer said last week that he recognizes there is a shortage of steel but that the program will determine whether these factory-made houses can answer the demand for low-cost homes.

The cost to the man who wants to live in it is estimated at about $8,000, without the lot. Reliance Homes, Inc., of Lester, Pa., says its homes, with three bedrooms, living room, "dinettes and kitchen, fully equipped with everything but a refrigerator, sell to the builder for $6,000. This includes cost of delivery to the site and putting it up.

The Reliance home comes in seven completely shop-assembled sections, with plumbing, heating and electrical systems installed. The firm says six men can put it together in four hours.

Senator Flanders (R-Vt.) and Rep. Sundstrom (R-N.J.), members of a joint congressional committee on housing, say their committee has concluded that mass production of houses is one of the basic solutions to the shortage.

Sundstrom says it takes only 500 man-hours to manufacture and put up a factory-made steel house against 1,500 to 2,000 for work at the site alone on a conventional dwelling.

Some backers say it takes about 9½ to 10 tons of steel for each of these houses, compared to 1½ tons for a conventional house. Some of the manufacturers said, however, they would use only 2½ to 4½ tons per house.

Some of those who opposed setting aside the steel said it could build more homes if it were used in regular houses as nails, braces,

City Rat Drive Gets Laurels From J. A. Krug

Interior Secretary Commends Work In Letter to Bolton

The Washington C. H. contribution to the national rat control campaign has received laurels from U. S. Secretary of the Interior J. A. Krug in a letter to William Bolton, sanitarian of the health department.

The letter was accompanied by a report of the national committee on rat control which recommended the passage by Congress of a $3,000,000 federal rat control bill. The money was suggested for assistance to local anti-rat campaigns.

In an earlier letter from the Fish and Wild Life Service, Bolton etc.

Those testifying for the factory process said such houses will sell for less than regular-fashioned homes because of mass production methods, less waste and a "big volume-small profits" technique.

was advised that an additional drive in the fall would be effective in catching rats which come in for shelter during the winter.

The recent drive conducted by the city and the health department with active support from the Young Business Men's Committee of the Chamber of Commerce was very effective, according to Bolton who estimated that at least 60 percent of the rats in the downtown area were removed. He added that at least 15,000 were poisoned at the old city dump.

Secretary Krug's letter commended the city for this drive but the city is not resting on its laurels.

Craig's Place New Elevator In Operation

Following two months' of preparation, the Craig Bros. Co. will open the new elevator to the public Friday afternoon, store officials announced today.

The new elevator, installed for the customers' convenience, replaces the old one which was used for about 40 years. Preparations for installing the new elevator were made by Horney and Son, contractors, while workmen from manufacturers of the elevator, did the actual installing.

The new elevator was tested and approved by state officials Thursday. The load limit is 2500 pounds and all of the latest safety conveniences have been included in the new apparatus. It is smoother and quieter than the old one, which was the first electric powered elevator in Washington C. H.

The motor for the new elevator stressed the fact Wednesday that people who want their premises baited for rats should call the Chamber of Commerce office. A plan is being worked out by which the Arab Pest Control Co., of Springfield will exterminate rats here under contract with the city, Hill stated.

is located atop the building and the car is "hung" on weights. The old elevator's motor was located in the basement and the car was pulled up and down by cables attached to a huge drum.

Finished in dark green, the new elevator is equipped with brass accessories.

Craig's improvement program is almost finished, officials said, and as soon as the basement has been completed, the floor coverings department will be moved into that space. The complete construction program included relocating the offices, reroofing the building and the construction of new stairways throughout the store.

Fewer Veterans Are To Return To College

It won't be long now until scores of Washington C. H. and Fayette County young people will be heading to colleges and universities.

Some will be returning to resume work begun one, two or three years earlier. Others will be just beginning a college career. Indications, however, point to a less number of veterans entering such schools than before, from this locality or elsewhere.

It is said that when colleges and universities begin their fall schedules a more nearly normal number of recent high school graduates will be found in the freshman classes.

According to Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati, who is known for expert predictions on college enrollment, the number of war veterans in the higher halls of learning will decrease substantially this fall, creating more opportunities for teen-agers, many of whom were unable last year to gain admittance to a college. Over the country as a whole a decrease in enrollment of between eight and ten percent is expected.

Most college officials will not be sorry to see total enrollments decline by that much or more. Their institutions have been sorely over-crowded for the past year or two.

Probably not for several years will it be possible to gauge accurately what the normal enrollment level is to be. By that time the nation might be ready to consider some permanent form of general subsidy to students, to make it possible for larger numbers to study beyond high school. The education program for veterans has provided an enlightening experiment in mass education at the college level.

Ruth And Young America

Children sat sadly on the steps of the hospital in New York where Babe Ruth lay dying. It was right that they should, for who had carried brusque and burly cheer into more children's wards all over the country more than had the Babe?

Men in sports, looking back over his career, have said that nobody really knew him, outside of maybe his family. But they're wrong. Children knew him. They knew him in the colorful days when he was the Sultan of Swat, and they knew him in the after days when he decided it was fitting enough that he should give back to childhood some of the idolatry it lavished on him as he played.

Baseball is a much greater game because he played it; not that he set out to do great works for baseball, he just couldn't help it. He is a permanent part of baseball legend, not just because of the way he played, the casual way he snacked homers, but because of what he was. Regardless of anything he did, Ruth will remain a fine heroic figure to many a child and in that alone he will have contributed much.

Learning To Work

The most valuable training which college can give is not special information in particular professions and trades. It is knowledge of the technique of working with others, says Dean Leonard S. Cottrell, Jr., of Cornell University. Lack of this knowledge causes failures in business in work and in family life.

True as this is, some of this training should have been given by parents before their children got as far as college.

Maybe the Memphis judge was wrong when he refused to excuse a man from jury duty because of a new set of false teeth. A man with new teeth should have some special privileges.

When it's time to add up household expenses and subtract the total from income, these days, the usefulness of algebra is proved. Under the rules of old-fashioned arithmetic, a large number can't be subtracted from a smaller one.

Chin Up, Kids; Plenty of Jobs

By Hal Boyle

WASHINGTON. (AP)—My, my, the opportunities a growing boy has nowadays!

When I was a squirt in Monett, Mo., there didn't seem to be many careers to choose from.

At various times I seriously considered such interesting careers as driving a delivery truck for Florenz's Hardware, being a switchman on the railroad, or beatbug a bass drum in a circus band.

I don't recall that at any time I ever thought much about working for the U. S. government.

That may have been a mistake.

For the government today, with more than 2,000,000 employees, is the world's greatest employer. And a boy, or girl, can look forward to being anything from a community management specialist to a zone senior chief cost auditor.

Naturally many of you kiddies must have dreamed of being a community management specialist. Well, the Atomic Energy Commission needs three. They manage the communities at Hanford, Wash.; Los Alamos, N. M., and Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The zone senior chief cost auditor? As you probably suspected, he works for the government's general accounting office.

Government is so complex and varied there is almost no end to the types of jobs at which the growing boy can aim.

Like to inspect tracks? The Interstate Commerce Commission has a track inspector. He peers at railroad tracks.

Want to be a copyright clearance specialist? See the Library of Congress.

Have a yen to be a chief of estimation and jacket preparation? No, this has nothing to do with gents' clothing. The job is in the government printing office.

The fledgling astrophysicist in our audience can look forward to trying for a job with the Smithsonian Institution. Or a preservation specialist can busy himself with the U. S. Maritime Commission, preserving boats.

Approximately, one of the longest titles, corrective physical rehabilitation specialist, belongs to one of the most serious chores. The Veterans' Administration hires the C. P. R. S., who helps find the correct exercises for wounded veterans.

Your government worries about you all the way. For the social security administration has these jobs:

For the baby—consultant in maternity and infant nursing service.

For the child (good)—child welfare analyst.

For the child (erring)—juvenile delinquency consultant.

For the parent (good or erring)—consultant in parent education.

And when we grow old, the federal security agency totters in. It has a gerontologist, a specialist, a specialist in the characteristics of old age.

One government job should especially appeal to the young. Over in the commerce department there's a man whose chores include counting the nation's annual output of jellybeans.

But whoa there! don't count on that job, kids. I saw it first.

Endless Talk — Nothing Settled

By George E. Sokolsky

Back in 1946, Molotov, who represents the greatest imperialist power in the world was addressing the penary session of the peace conference of 21 nations—one of the numerous abortive efforts to find peace. He condemned a speech by Premier De Gaulle on the ground that the Italian was making a defense of imperialism. He then said:

"Certain great powers are now evincing a desire to assume a monopolistic position in the Mediterranean and to push into background not only Italy but France as well."

In a word, he objected to the British and American interest in the Mediterranean which those countries liberated from Hitler and Mussolini.

How complicated a discussion can become is evident from conversations which took place on September 24, 1946, at the afore-said conference. I quote:

"In the Italian political commission the Canadian delegate favoured postponing a decision on the colonies for a year. He also supported Abyssinia's claim to Eritrea. The South African delegate withdrew his amendment seeking an assurance that the inhabitants of the colonies would be consulted as well as those governments which contributed substantial forces towards their liberation, in view of the declaration of the big four the previous day that the views of interested governments would be taken into consideration when the final decision was made. The Chinese delegate asked that the general principles of the ultimate disposal of the colonies be laid down straight away. He supported Ethiopia's claim to Eritrea and proposed the immediate recognition of the independence of Libya, etc., etc. . . . M. Vyshinsky thought it quite rational to consult U. N. O. if it was going to set up a trusteeship council to deal with all such problems."

Now, the point is that no progress has been made in this field since then except that there have been many more proposals, all of which go by the board. And the entire matter is being discussed now and unless the discussion leads to something by September 21, it will go to the assembly of the United Nations where it will be discussed ad infinitum, the representatives of maybe all 50-odd states each making a prolonged speech on the wrongs of Fascism, the wonders of democracy and why not send it to another commission?

Once, in the course of the debates, Ernest Bevin tried to remind the statesmen that Italy had been of valuable service to the allies after 1943. He also reminded them that for a long time it was Great Britain and Greece that carried the burden in the Italian colonies and that had they failed, the whole course of the war might have been different. Of course, nobody was convinced and the situation remained as it was.

Italy has requested a trusteeship for Libya. Soviet Russia has seized a large number of countries, including half of Korea, the whole of Manchuria and the Ili district of Turkestan, Hungary and Rumania and a piece of Finland, but at no time has Soviet Russia asked to be made a trustee for this territory under the control of the United Nations. Such a trusteeship would mean a guarantee that some day the colonial area would become "fully independent."

Russia once wanted Tripolitania. The United States countered at the time (February 12, 1946) with a complex plan of administration of the Italian colonies—which came to nothing. So the Russians countered with a proposal that they would change their plans if Trieste were given to Yugoslavia—which was not done. The Arabs declared that if Tripolitania is returned to Italy, "it will mean war."

My purpose in retailing this account is to indicate the difficulties of making peace and how the shifts of domestic policy leads to shifts in the expression of international views.

The point is that nothing happens. Talks go on endlessly, but nothing is settled. Even a wrong settlement would be better than the present confusion. It is the same in Berlin, in Palestine, in Korea. It is the same over all the world—the talk is endless; the results indefinite. And American policy is not altogether without blame, for it is never positive; it has never been sure. It never calls the turn.

Dangerous Carriers Of Disease Germs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

GREAT popular interest always attaches to disease carriers such as the "Typhoid Marys" discovered now and again in our large cities. Unfortunately, typhoid fever is not the only illness which can be spread by people who harbor disease germs without themselves being affected. That is one reason why, with all our preventive work, we still have outbreaks of diphtheria and will continue to have them until all persons are protected by injections of diphtheria toxin.

Moreover, there is even greater danger from people who actually suffer from the disease but do not have it in its usual form or experience the usual symptoms.

May Develop Disease

Contrary to popular opinion, a carrier may now and then develop the disease himself, though all permanent carriers seem to be immune. It also happens that some people who have the disease become carriers for a longer or shorter period of time, since the germs can persist in the upper air passages for months after recovery from the disease. Other lodging places of these germs are the tonsils, the upper part of the throat, and occasionally, the middle ear.

As I have said, the person with unrecognized diphtheria, often combined with a streptococcal infection of the nose, is more dangerous from the standpoint of spreading the disease than the carrier. In such cases, there is a persistent yellow, blood-stained discharge from the nose, loss of strength, and inflammation of the skin around the nose.

Units of Penicillin

It is suggested that diphtheria carriers be given a million units of penicillin daily, and such treatment may help get rid of the germs.

The penicillin is given at three-hour intervals for three days, even though the germs may be eliminated after 24 hours of treatment. The carrier should also spend as much time as possible in the open air, and must be kept out of contact with other persons until at least three consecutive nose and throat cultures, made five or more days apart, do not show the diphtheria germs.

Penicillin has been used in treating diphtheria, but it should by no means replace antitoxin. It is stated, however, that in large doses it is effective in preventing the development of the carrier state.

Some persons may carry diphtheria germs which are not dangerous. There are tests which can be carried out on the germs to show whether or not it is the dangerous type. Of course, in such cases, the carrier must be isolated and given treatment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. N.: What causes a little lump to form under a bruise? Is there anything to worry about?

Answer: A lump may be due to a blood clot or to scar tissue. Probably you have no cause for concern. However, it would be advisable to have the lump examined by your physician.

Demountable Fur Coat Is Invented By Chicago Man

By ALICE ALEXANDER

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP)—By adding, subtracting and zipping a zipper, Sam Stein has turned a fur coat into three wraps which can be worn ten months of the year.

Stein, a Chicago furrier, sees his design as an answer to the husband whose budget winces when the wife wants a new coat each season.

The coat, termed "the three season fur ensemble" consists first of a fur coat. When the weather turns warmer, off comes the skirt—leaving a versatile jacket.

For the in-between season, Stein adds a colored wool skirt trimmed with fur. This zips onto the jacket and creates the third ensemble.

Stein said "I'm working on the knowledge that a fur coat never wears out. It is discarded or remodeled because the woman is tired of wearing it year after year. This way she won't get tired as soon."

And when she does, she can order still another wool skirt in any color of her choice.

Stein has made up sample ensembles of Persian lamb, but plans to manufacture the ensemble in almost any fur desired.

One unusually novel model consisted of a flare-back coat with full sleeves.

"Watch me convert this into a fitted jacket," Stein said.

The model slipped off the coat and sure enough, underneath was a fitted bolero jacket to which the sleeves had been attached. The coat which had come off was sleeveless. Stein calls this his "mystery coat."

The furrier sees his idea as a boon to weekend travelers. Now a woman can carry not only three changes of dresses, but also the same number of coats, with very few extra bulges in her suitcase.

Deep Rooted Legumes Hit Real Pay Dirt

Deep-rooted legumes are a tool for making "pay dirt" out of heavy, hard packed soil, declares the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"The 'bottom' soil on thousands of midwestern farms are so tightly compacted below the plow furrows," says the statement, "that crop growth is seriously hampered."

"Such soils have lost their nourishing cushion of organic matter because of overcropping. Soil structure has been broken down by failure to include well-fertilized deep-rooted legumes and grasses in the rotation. Soil particles have become closely jammed together. Channels for roots, air and water have been sealed off."

"Rain does not soak into compacted soils. Drainage is poor. Roots of corn and grain cannot penetrate below the topsoil for water and plant nutrients. The shallow soil layer near the surface is the sole source of 'room and board.'"

"The result is weak root development, stunted, ill-nourished growth above ground and low crop yields."

"These tightly closed soils can be unlocked by deep-rooted legumes. The taproots of sweet clover or alfalfa well fertilized with phosphorus and potash drill straight down into the soil. They penetrate not only the plow sole, but push on down 18 to 25 inches into the subsoil below. They loosen the soil and put organic matter down in the 'basement.'"

"When these well-fed legumes are plowed under or disced in deeply they add tons of precious organic matter to the soil. This organic matter builds soil structure. It keeps the soil loose so that rain is soaked up more rapidly."

"Once the missionary work of sweet clover and alfalfa is accomplished other crops following in the rotation can freely send their roots deeper for oxygen, plant food and water. Then you get much higher crop yields."

Lime dressing for the soil can be traced to the earliest records of British agriculture.

Control of Danube Voted by Soviets

19—(AP)—Eastern Europe's Communist bloc voted itself exclusive control over the Danube River today and the western powers officially recorded their refusal to heed the decision.

The vote of the conference was 2 to 1 to accept the Russian-drafted pact posting a "Danube for the Danubians" sign over the continent's most important waterway. The United States voted against it. Neither Britain nor France voted.

Both the British ambassador, Sir Charles E. Pike, and Adrien Thier, chief of the French delegation, remained in the conference room while the final voting took place.

The United States accused Russia of "deception." The head of the American delegation charged that the Communist bloc of states had been used with "cynical" solidarity to achieve the Soviet aim.

'Tempest Tornado' Seeking Dry Kansas

DODGE CITY, Kas., Aug. 19—(AP)—The "temperance tornado" began its sweep of dry Kansas today.

The "temperance tornado" is a group of prohibitionists, starting a 12-day automobile tour of Kansas to oppose repeal of the state's anti-liquor laws.

They give themselves the tornado title. "Before we get through it will be just like any Kansas tornado—we'll gather strength as we move along," said Willard Mayberry, Elkhart, Kas., publisher who is heading the 15,000-mile swing around the state.

Kansas will vote in November on a proposal to repeal the 67-year-old prohibition law.

Cong. Clarence J. Brown Tells Of Congressional Activities

While President Truman, Henry Wallace and Communist leaders have joined in designating the Congressional investigations of a Russian spy ring in Washington as a "red herring" to distract attention from the high cost of living issue, the fact remains that the shocking revelation which have come during these investigations are awakening America to the dangers which threaten our national security from within.

Just why President Truman insists upon refusing to furnish these Congressional committees with the employment of loyalty check records of Government employees who have been charged with espionage activities in behalf of Russia, is indeed hard to understand. Refusal to permit Congressional committees to examine these official records—even in executive session—raises a question as to who is protecting who and why?

While it is always extremely difficult to prove treason in spy or espionage cases in a court of law, it is easier to do so in the court of public opinion. No one could have heard the testimony given before the House and Senate investigating committees without grasping the sinister pattern into which the evidence fitted—or what the fate of America will be if such conditions within our government are permitted to continue. Three former Russian spies or Soviet agents have testified against thirty or more past and present employees of the Federal Government. Many of these have already been brought to the witness stand. A few have denied all guilt. Others have attempted to explain away the testimony against them. Most of the witnesses, however, have refused to answer questions as to the charges made against them by replying to every question: "I stand on my rights under the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution and refuse to answer on the ground that to do so might incriminate or degrade me." Yet the corroborative evidence and testimony which have been given before the investigating committees make strong cases against the public officials—past and present—who have been charged with unfaithfulness to their public trust.

The investigations are also revealing the why and wherefore of a number of the past policies of the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations which have proven to be so injurious to our national welfare. For months now many Americans have been indignantly demanding to know why this government continued to export strategic supplies to Russia and her satellites at the very time we were spending billions of dollars and drafting thousands of our sons to stop the spread of Communism throughout the world.

To those who found it difficult to understand why the Morgenthau Plan—which called for the dismantling of German factories and the shipment of much of their equipment to Russia while the American taxpayers fed and supported the German people—was put into effect and kept going for so long, despite the protests of many high officials, the House investigation gives the answer. The man who is credited with preparing the Morgenthau Plan—Harry D. White, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury—has had all sorts of charges made against him by those who have testified before the House Committee. That many of his activities were very peculiar, to say the least, and many of his associates were persons of doubtful loyalty, can not be questioned. Incidentally, Mr. White was also the top American official who masterminded the Bretton Woods Agreements.

Another man whose name has appeared prominently in the House investigation is Alger Hiss, formerly a high official in the State Department, who is charged by a former Russian agent, Whitaker Chambers, with being a Communist and one who furnished important secret government information to the Russian ring.

It will be worth your while—if you are interested in your own future—that of your children or your country—to keep in touch with the developments which will come from the continuing Congressional investigations of Communist activities within our government. You may even want to learn the name of one of the highest officials in the government who furnished the Soviet during the days of the war—when our sons were fighting and dying—not only information, but with quantities of top secret atomic material for Russian research. No wonder we can not now be sure whether Russia has the atomic bomb.

Boy's Reformatory Ready Next Year

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19—(P)—The state welfare department said today that contracts for fencing and fence foundations at its boys' reformatory site near Marion had been let and the first youthful inmates at the institution probably would enter early next year. A department spokesman said a contract for fencing, which would enclose twelve of the site's 1244 acres, was awarded the American Steel and Wire Co. The bid was $37,316.

The Marion Construction Corp. made the only bid for construction of the fence foundation at $12,463. Within the next two months, the department said, the $100,000 allocated by the legislature for preliminary work at Marion will be spent.

Five men are renovating ten of the existing buildings at Marion for use as administration building, cafeteria, hospital laboratory and six dormitories.

Bids on painting and preserving wood in the ten buildings would be let Sept. 1. The department estimates costs to be $21,495.

Crushed Under Lift

BELLAIRE, Aug. 19—(P)—Robert McFarland, 55, of Shady-side, was killed yesterday when crushed beneath the cage of a lift in the web mine of the Cambria Collieries Co.

"Old Folks at Home," popular American song, earned its author, Stephen Foster, only $1,647.49 during his lifetime.

80,000 Kids Aid Nation's Corn Growers

Alabama Youths Used
By H. C. Mark & Son
For Detasseling Job

More than 80,000 youngsters earned cash for giving hybrid seed corn growers a hand in the important detasseling job this summer—the final step in the 10-year process of developing hybrid seed. And the growers paid out a quarter of a million dollars to the small army of teen-age corn detassellers.

One Fayette County hybrid seed-corn grower—Harold C. Mark and Son—used some of the youngsters to help with the corn crop this year. Twenty-nine boys, ranging in age from 16 to 22, stayed at the Mark farm on the Miami Trace Road for several weeks, helping them detassel the corn. The boys came to Ohio from Huntsville, Ala., and lived in barracks fashion on the Mark farm. Under the supervision of a county agent from Madison County, Alabama, the boys were boarded by the Marks. Besides getting their room and board, the young workers also were paid 45 cents an hour and transportation expenses.

During the detasseling season, which lasts in some areas from three to five weeks, boys and sometimes even girls from the cities and from rural areas make their headquarters at the camps of seed corn growers. They have lots of fun in the fields, but they also learn how to be careful workers. They have to do a good job or the whole field may be condemned by inspectors. Corn in such fields can't be sold for seed. Varrification of the fact that the Marks get good workers is the record which the Alabama youngsters have made. They have been coming here for the past several years during the detasseling season, and are always called back because of the quality of the work they do.

Detasseling crews walk down the corn rows or ride on spidery looking contraptions built around a tractor. The tassels are pulled from the corn plant in six to eight rows, then two rows are skipped. Pollen from the tassels rows fall on and fertilize the silk of ears on plants which were detasseled. In one trip of the machine, six rows can be detasseled. Six boys ride on the tractor-mounted machine while another drives it. The corn harvested from the stalks without tassels is the hybrid seed corn which farmers plant.

A crew riding one of the machines has to play a game of teamwork and rhythm so one worker doesn't hold up the entire group. A smooth, even pull does it. If they break the tassels off, a small piece stays to grow out and spread pollen later. Their technique is bad too, if they pull off too many upper leaves with the tassel. But it isn't too hard to get the hang of it. When they can pull 500 or more tassels in an hour, they're rated among the best.

At Mark's, as in many of the larger camps, beds are set up in huge seed store rooms where it is clean and comfortable. After the evening meal the boys played ball or went down to the 3 C's highway and watched traffic. While here they also took in the Fayette County Fair one evening and on another occasion were taken to Columbus for a visit to the zoo and then to watch the Columbus Red Birds play.

The boys enjoyed the work because it gives them a chance to see another section of the country. With their transportation, room and board and a wage being furnished they can't lose.

In the middle of the 19th century the passenger pigeon outnumbered any other kind of bird on the North American continent.

INDICTED on charges of conspiring to overthrow the government by violence, Gus Hall, Ohio Communist party chairman, surrenders to the FBI in Cleveland. Hunted since July 20, day of the Federal Grand jury indictment in New York, he is accused with 11 other top Communists. (International)

Pay of Seamen Is Boosted Sharply

CLEVELAND, Aug. 19.—(P)—Pay raises of about eight percent for an estimated 12,000 officers and unlicensed seamen on the Great Lakes were announced today by representatives of some 23 vessel companies.

The company spokesman said the increases would be effective for the payroll period nearest Sept. 1. That will put the higher rates in effect for some companies before the end of this month.

Present hourly rates of seamen vary from 85 cents to $1.05 and amount to monthly earnings of from $235 to $290. Officers' pay rates vary widely among the different companies.

The new pay raises, which the companies said were made because of the rising living costs, are the first since last Sept. 1 when boosts of about the same cash value were made to officers and seamen, a majority of whom are not under union contract.

Ashland to Return To Eastern Time

ASHLAND, Aug. 19.—(P)—This city will return to Eastern Standard Time from the present daylight basis Sept. 7, two weeks earlier than originally planned, because schools will open Sept. 8. City council passed an emergency ordinance for the early time change last night in response to requests from parents of students.

Government Subsidy Is Paid By French To Boost Births

By Jacques Armand-Prevost
PARIS, Aug. 19.—(P)—The time has passed in France when you could see advertisements reading "Dogs, piano and children unwanted," because government subsidies are paid for children.

Seriously alarmed by her dwindling birthrate, France began paying for babies and in nine years the figures have gone up from 612,000 births in 1938, or 146 for every 10,000 inhabitants, to 860,000 in 1947, or 210 per 10,000.

During the same period the death rate went down from 647,000 in 1938, or 154 per 10,000 to 535,000 in 1947, or 131 per 10,000.

The French government increased in a considerable way the number of compensations, bonus and subsidies for families having children. Now, a family of five with three children is paid a monthly compensation of 10,500 francs (about $35) which equals the average departmental wages fixed by the government. For four children the rate per month is 14,000 francs (about $46) and compensations go up according to the number of children.

There is a special subsidy for the first child born within two years of marriage. It amounts to 21,000 francs (about $70) and has been extended to each birth. Half of the bonus, 10,500 francs, is given when the baby is born and the last 10,500 when the baby is six months old.

There are also compensations given to mothers to encourage them to stay at home and not to work, plus a certain number of advantages offered to big families, such as reduced rate tickets on railways and priority cards. Each child also entitles you to a deduction in your income tax.

Long Air Trip Made Bird's Band Reveals

PERTH, Australia.—(P)—Robert Beattie, a railway worker, went fishing here and hooked a bird—a giant petrel. A band on its leg showed it had been released by British scientists at Signy Island in the South Orkneys.

Local scientists calculated that if it flew over the South Pole it flew 5,000 miles. And it took a route via Kerguelen Island it flew twice that distance. The petrel ended its travels in the South Perth zoo.

Teacher Studies With Waring

Lee Theobald Returns From Music Workshop

Miss Lee Theobald returned to her home here Thursday after spending last week at the Fred Waring Music Workshop at Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., and then several days in New York City. Miss Theobald, a vocal music teacher in the Hillsboro schools, recently made an extensive tour through the western states also.

The Waring Workshop is under the personal direction of Waring who brings his entire group of singers, musicians, arrangers and writers to broadcast their weekly schedule of six half-hour radio shows from the village community center, Worthington Hall.

Miss Theobald, while attending the Workshop, observed all the daily rehearsals and broadcasts of the Pennsylvanians, took part in extensive choral rehearsals, studied methods of choral conducting, program building, sight reading and microphone techniques—all under the direction of Waring, his assistants and members of the organization staff.

Extra curricular activities at the Workshop included a regular schedule of recitals by individual Pennsylvanians and a full program of recreational activities around Shawnee Lake which is reserved for the exclusive use of Workshop members and the Pennsylvanians.

This year's session is the second year of the Fred Waring Music Workshop at Shawnee and more than 500 school, college, church, community and industrial music directors are attending the one week session.

Olympic Chief Is Coming to U. S.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—(P)—Mrs. Marie Provaznikova, leader of the Czechoslovakian women's Olympic team, cancelled her return plane passage to Prague today and the press attache at her embassy said she would go to the United States.

"Mrs. Provaznikova has been approached by a United States university to serve as a gymnastic instructor," said the press attache.

"and she has asked Prague for permission to go there for one year."

He added that Mrs. Provaznikova was almost certain to get permission.

Earlier at least two of her countrymen had walked out on the Czech Olympic team and announced they would remain here for political reasons.

Four other members of the Czechoslovakian Olympic team were reported planning similar action.

Patent Awarded Fayette Man On Helicopter Part

Robert Hoppes Has Invention Fully Protected

Robert Hoppes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hoppes, residing a few miles south of Washington C. H., and who is a mechanic in the International Harvester plant at Springfield, was recently granted a patent on a helicopter part.

However, Hoppes is somewhat doubtful if the patent will ever mean anything in particular and modestly stated that most of the things patented are never used.

His invention pertains to improvements in helicopters of the dual rotor class which, as commonly known, comprise two sets of oppositely rotating blades mounted respectively above the forward and rear sections of the fuselage.

In their general operation, power is applied to the rotors and when the speed becomes great enough, the machine lifts itself off the ground until a certain height is attained, at which point the craft hovers until more or less power is supplied. Conversely, for descending, the speed of the rotors is gradually reduced until they fail to lift and thereby cause a loss in altitude. In order to obtain forward or rearward flight, the position and setting of the respective blades of the two rotors are adjusted to achieve such motion.

Hoppes' construction may best be described by citing the advantages and features attributed to it. For example, he provides a means of making the ascending and descending adjustments of the rotor blades change from one to the other automatically as the driving power is applied or removed.

In addition, the weight of the body and the various mechanisms is distributed evenly under the rotors so that the center of gravity is midway between the latter. The useful load space may be located about this point to prevent unbalance of the craft.

As a particular feature, Hoppes' invention utilizes the momentum of the rotating blades, after descending, by tilting them to a lifting angle when approaching the ground so as to create a lift for cushioning the shock of landing.

Furthermore, his design keeps the plane level while taking off, landing, at rest on the ground, or in flight; and, in the latter instance, the pendulum effect is noticed only when flying directly sidewise or turning, and is very small in comparison to that of single rotor craft. Finally, an auxiliary conventional type pro-

economical natural gas

to your slightest touch

Whether you are an experienced cook or a beginner, you know how important it is to use exactly the right heat for each type of cookery. That's why economical natural gas is the preferred cooking fuel. Gas offers flexibility that responds instantly to your slightest touch. You can turn on just a tiny bit more heat or a little bit less—you are not limited to a few heats. This makes it easier to do waterless cooking, pressurepan cooking and other modern methods requiring dependable controls and instant flexibility for best results.

Gas is clean, too. With burners properly adjusted there's never the faintest smudge or stain on cooking pans, no soot to scour off stove or utensils. And speed! Cooking begins the instant the burner is lighted. No waiting for heat to "come up," no fuel wasted after the cooking is done.

When you cook and heat water with economical natural gas, you save time and work and money.

World Church Meeting This Month

AMSTERDAM — (AP) — Fifteen hundred officials and delegates from 45 countries are to attend the first international assembly of the world council of churches here Aug. 22 to Sept. 4.

With 145 churches around the world represented, the meeting will climax 10 years of planning. It will open with services at Ancient New Church, in the center of the city opposite the Royal Palace. In this church, Queen Wilhelmina was invested and here two weeks after the assembly opens Princess Juliana will be invested as new ruler of the Netherlands.

The assembly will plan the future of the world council and discuss "man's disorder and God's design."

Prominent figures expected to attend include the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, John Foster Dulles, Prof. Karl Barte of Basel, Pastor Martin Niemöller of Frankfurt, and Ernest Brown, privy councillor to the British government. Four archbishops, eight bishops and eleven leaders of world or national interdenominational agencies will speak.

One committee will study four "concerns" of the churches: The Christian attitude towards Jews, the place of women in the church, lay training, and reconstruction and inter-church aid. Others will deal with organizational and administrative matters.

Theological discussions will involve four reports prepared by international commissions including more than 200 theologians and lay leaders.

The Amsterdam Concert Hall, chief meeting place, will be equipped with a wireless translation system like one used at United Nations meetings.

Trend Toward Unity

The world council of churches assembly at Amsterdam is regarded by many protestant and orthodox leaders in America as one more indication of a modern trend towards various kinds of church unity.

The assembly has been called by its American committee "the most representative Christian body in history."

One topic to be studied will be "the universal church in God's design."

The Catholic attitude on unity is summed up by Father Edward Duff, religious editor of "America," national Catholic weekly, in a statement he adapted from a recent editorial in his paper:

"The prayers of Catholics attend all search for unity. Catholics, however, hold that unity was bequeathed to the Catholic Church by its founder, Jesus Christ."

On the domestic front, eight U. S. denominations will send delegates to talk merger at Buck Hill Falls, Pa., October 19-21. They are the Congregational, Christian, Evangelical Reformed, Northern Baptists, Disciples of Christ, Presbyterians, Methodists, the Association of Community Churches and the Moravians. The Episcopalians will send observers.

Dr. Mark Dawber, secretary of the group, thinks more will sign up before the meeting.

Plans Laid Last May

Last May, plans for a new national council of churches were laid. Dr. Earl F. Adams, executive secretary, expects to merge eight interdenominational agencies. They are the Federal Council, the International Council of Religious Education, the Foreign Missions Conference, the Home Missions Council, the Missionary Education Council, the National Protestant Council on Higher Education, the United Council of Church Women and the United Stewardship Council.

Writing for the world council, Dr. H. S. Leiper and Dr. H. G. G. Herklotz estimate there have been more than 30 church unions in 35 years. These involved some 75 denominations.

Large Methodist groups have united in the United States and the United Kingdom. Most Presbyterians in Scotland have united. In Canada an Organic Church Union includes Methodists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians. In India a church union includes all these plus Anglicans. Most non-Catholic Christians in Japan have formed a single church.

Mergers of various American denominations still are being discussed. These proposals include mergers of the Congregational Christians and the Evangelical and Reform Church, the Presbyterians and Episcopalians, the Disciples of Christ and Baptists. Church Synods have turned down some of these plans, but even so "conversations" continue.

The World Almanac lists more than 250 church denominations in the United States alone, but Dr. Leiper figures that 30 percent of American Christians are in 13 bodies, most of them now, he says, in close cooperation.

"In the last hundred years," says Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen of Union Theological Seminary, "there has been no new schism of major proportions among Christians."

Before 1800, cooperation between denominations was virtually unknown. Today, most American cities have ministerial councils and young men's and young women's Christian associations. There are united church drives, union services and joint charity work.

Springfield Strike Idles 50-100 Here

An estimated 50 to 100 residents of Washington C. H., and Fayette County residents were out of work

Wednesday as a result of the International Harvester strike which began Tuesday morning.

All employees of the Springfield plant which ordinarily employs between 50 and 100 workers from Fayette County, were notified Tuesday that they should not report for work until further notice.

The strike came as a result of a disagreement over a new contract and workers were unwilling to continue under the old one.

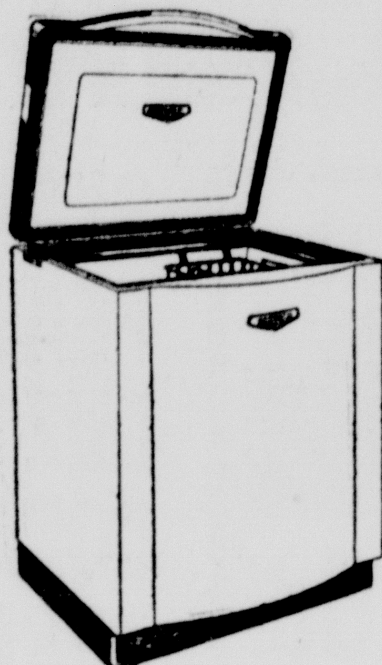

It is a nationwide strike in all seven of the International Harvester plants. There seems to be no immediate prospect of agreement and some sources have stated that it will take a long time to come to an agreement.

Dodgers Move Up and Giants Win Another

(By the Associated Press)
The Brooklyn Dodgers moved to within one game of the league-leading Boston Braves Wednesday as they defeated the Phillies 1-0 with Rex Barney hurling one-hit ball.

Robin Roberts wild pitched Marv Rackley home with the game's only run in the first inning.

Ralph Caballero got the only hit off Barney—a single with one out in the fifth inning. The 27-year-old Brooklyn right-hander walked three men and fanned five, three in the last inning.

Rackley opened the game with a single. After Jackie Robinson rolled out, Gene Hermanski walked. Trying to catch Rackley napping at second, Roberts threw the ball into centerfield and both men advanced.

Duke Snider fanned but with Pee Wee Reese at bat, the Philadelphia rookie let loose a wild pitch and Rackley scored.

The Giants put together some good pitching and hitting—a rare combination for the New Yorkers these days—to whip the league-leading Boston Braves, 8-2, Wednesday.

Sheldon Jones, strong-armed New York right-hander, held the Braves to eight hits to rack up his twelfth victory against six defeats.

Meanwhile the Giants combed Vern Bickford and Bob Hogue for 10 hits, including homers by Sid Gordon and Johnny Mize. Veteran Ernie White finished up in the eighth after the Giants had nicked Hogue for three runs. The Giants got another run off White on a sacrifice.

Jones was in trouble in only two innings, the second and third. The Braves got one run in each. Jeff Heath and Bill Salkeld walked to start the second frame and Clint Jones bore down and retired the next three batters on grounders Conatser's double scored Heath, and a pop foul.

In the third Boston got a single, double and two walks, twice filling the bases, but had to settle for one run. Salkeld's fly drove in Alvin Dark with that one.

Mize collected his twenty-ninth four-bagger of the year in the second with none on, and Gordon poked his twenty-fourth with one aboard in the third.

Drake's Win In Sabina Tourney

Loss at Greenfield Puts Them Out There

Drake's Produce softball team, now tied for first place in the recreational League, took on two teams Wednesday night and came out with a .500 record.

Drake's were entered in two tournaments—one at Greenfield where they were in the semi-finals and another at Sabina. Their playing schedule entailed some fast work Wednesday night as they dropped a 1-0 game to the Chillicothe A. C. nine in the first game at 7:45 P. M. in Greenfield and then drove to Sabina where they won a place in the quarter finals by defeating Kiers of Waynesville by a score of 5 to 1.

Drake's defeated the Waynesville American Legion last Friday night and that win enabled them to remain in the tourney.

One other Washington C. H. team—the other leader in the Recreational League, the Universal Auto Co.—is also in the quarter-finals of the Sabina tournament. The Universals will play Loveland at 10 P. M. Friday night and Drake's will play again next Tuesday at 9 P. M. Their opponent is unknown as yet, depending on the results of some other games still to be played.

Jeff and DP&L Play Tonight

Only one game is on the slate for Thursday night at Wilson Field as the Recreation League softball season goes into the final stages. The Jeffersonville Merchants will meet the Dayton Power and Light team at 8 P. M.

Two special games will be played Friday night. The Springfield Carpenters Union Local No. 66 will play the Lawson Legionnaires at 7:30 P. M. instead of Morton's as was previously announced. The second game—which will follow immediately—will feature the Logan Clay Products team and Armbrusts.

Hughey Legion Enters Area Meet

The Paul H. Hughey American Legion Post's softball team has been informed that it will participate in the sectional American Legion tournament in Columbus next Sunday afternoon. Francis Morgan, spokesman for the team, said Thursday.

Three other teams are entered in the tourney, Morgan said. There is one team from Columbus, another from Cincinnati and Morgan said he did not know which Post the third team represented.

The first game Sunday afternoon will begin at 2 P. M. and will be played on the Linden Ball Park diamond, Morgan said. A second game will begin at 3. Which team the Hughey Post would play or which game they would participate in will not be known until the drawing is held at noon Sunday, Morgan said.

A large number of fans is expected to follow the team to Columbus.

HADDIX HAS IT! - - - By Alan Maver

HARVEY HADDIX, YOUNG HURLER OF THE COLUMBUS RED BIRDS, WHOM THE PARENT ST. LOUIS CARDS EXPECT TO BECOME ANOTHER HARRY BRECHEEN

Harvey Haddix, the subject of the accompanying feature on his pitching prowess, is a former boy from near Jeffersonville who got his start in baseball in the original South Central Ohio Baseball League here three years ago.

Last year, his first year in professional baseball, Haddix had a 19-5 record with the Winston-Salem team. Many of his Fayette County friends continue to watch him play with the Columbus Red Birds whenever they get the chance.

Midget Cars to Race Sunday in Columbus

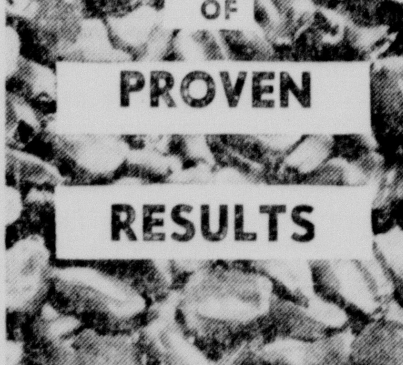

Midget racing fans will have an opportunity next Sunday afternoon at Powell Speedway northwest of Columbus to compare the best in independent racing circles with the top stars of the AAA.

Earlier in the season the AAA boys staged quite a distance show at the Powell track, and in Sunday's spring show the independent drivers will have a chance to shoot at AAA times up to 25 laps.

Harry Gilchrist, general manager of Sunday's race, says the best in the business will be there, including Al Keller, winner of the recent 100 lap race at Heidelberg Speedway, the million dollar Pittsburgh layout.

Sunday's program starts with the time trials at noon and the first of the seven sprint events is billed for 2:30 P. M. promptly. The feature race will be for 25 laps, and there will also be a heli-pet dash for the four fastest cars. The sensational International Handicap will also be staged—the race in which the cars start in single file with the fastest in the rear.

Universals Cop Another

No hitters seem to be a fad in Washington C. H. as the softball season draws to close. Carroll Steele, pitching for the Recreation League-leading Universal Auto Co., turned in a no hit-no run game Wednesday night as the leaders smothered the Jeffersonville Merchants 14-0.

The Universal boys scored in every inning except the fifth—their biggest rally coming in the last inning when six runs were scored.

E. Shaw, Universal third baseman, led the hitting with three hits in five times at bat. He was credited with two singles and a home run.

Evans was on the mound for the Merchants but was unable to stop the mass slaughter by the Universal boys.

Colosseum At Rome Readied For Real Use

First Time In Many Centuries Arena To See Activity

(Advance) ROME, Aug. 19.—(P)—After centuries of silence and gloom, Rome's colosseum will soon shine again with lights and glamor.

The old Roman circus, where 5,000 wild animals were killed in a 100-day series of inauguration celebrations in the year 80 A. D., under Emperor Titus, has survived earthquakes, destructions and centuries of wars, invasion and foreign occupations.

Two centuries ago Pope Benedict XIV, to protect the building against demolition, consecrated the interior to the passion of Christ, "referring to the frequency with which the blood of martyrs had flowed there."

"The sacred mystery" a religious drama by Pedro Calderon De La Barga, a 16th century Spanish author, will feature a convention of Catholic youth in the colosseum.

Many technical and artistic problems had to be solved before the 19-centuries-old monument could be considered for the show.

In September over 300,000 Catholic young men and women will come to Rome. Their pilgrimage is considered as a mass rehearsal for the 1950 holy year celebrations.

The colosseum measures 573 yards in circumference and the long diameter of its elliptical structure is 205 yards. Its height is 157 feet. It can hold 80,000 spectators. The building, originally called "Amphitheatrum Flavium" is considered the largest theatre and one of the most imposing structures of the world.

Spy Inquiries Put in Politics

Republicans Accept Truman's Challenge

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(P)—Republicans gave every indication today of accepting President Truman's challenge to make a political issue of the Congressional hunt for Communists in the government.

Mr. Truman's second declaration that the Senate and House investigators are nothing but a red herring—with the added phrase of the strongest type you can smell—brought a burst of answering fire from GOP ranks.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign manager declared at Albany that the people are "shocked" at what he called the president's attitude "in seeming to cover up" information bearing on Communist activities.

Herbert Brownell, Jr., the campaign chief for the Republican nominee, added to reporters that nothing else that has happened in Washington in the last three weeks could match the "intensive" interest shown at the spy investigations.

Rep. Mundt (R-SD), who has been acting chairman for many of the hearings before the House Un-American Activities Committee, shaped his acceptance in the form of a counter-dare.

"I challenge the president," Mundt said, "to authorize the FBI and other government agencies to make available the evidence substantiating or disproving the existence of these espionage activities."

Mr. Truman indicated by his second jab at the Congressional hearings he expects the Republicans to dwell on testimony that some government officials gave away secrets to Moscow agents.

His vigorous assertion that these inquiries are nothing but a red herring left little doubt he will contend in rebuttal that the hearings were stage managed to take the public mind off his cost of living battle with Congress.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

LYNN nodded thoughtfully when Aunt Kathie spoke of her concern for Lionel Clode's health. The change in her uncle had not escaped her notice, nor his curious alternation of moods. She suspected that he occasionally had recourse to drugs to stimulate himself, and she wondered whether he was not to a certain extent an addict. It would account for his extreme nervous irritability. She wondered how much Aunt Kathie knew or guessed. Aunt Kathie, thought Lynn, was not such a fool as she looked.

Going on down High St., Lynn caught a glimpse of her Uncle Jeremy letting himself into his front door. He looked, Lynn thought, very much older just in these last few weeks.

She quickened her pace. She wanted to get out of Warmley Vale, up onto the hills and open spaces. Setting out at a brisk pace she soon felt better. She would go for a good tramp of six or seven miles—and really think things out. Always, all her life, she had been a resolute clear-headed person. She had known what she wanted and what she didn't want. Never, until now, had she been content just to drift along.

Yes that was just what it was! Drifting along! An aimless formless method of living. Ever since she had come out of the Service. A wave of nostalgia swept over her for those war days. Days when duties were clearly defined, when life was planned and orderly—when the weight of individual decisions had been lifted from her. But even as she formulated the idea, she was horrified at herself. Was that really and truly what people were secretly feeling everywhere? Was that what, ultimately, war did to you? It was not the physical dangers—the mines at sea, the bombs from the air, the crisp ping of a rifle bullet as you drove over a desert track. No, it was the spiritual danger of learning how much easier life was if you ceased to think. . . .

She, Lynn Marchmont, was no longer the clearheaded resolute intelligent girl who had joined up. Her intelligence had been specialized, directed in well-defined channels. Now, mistress of herself and her life once more, she was appalled at the disorientation of her mind to seize and grapple with her own personal problems.

With a sudden wry smile, Lynn thought to herself: Odd if it's really that newspaper character "the housewife" who has come into her own through war conditions. The women who, hindered by innumerable "shall nots," were not helped by any definite "shalls." Women who had to plan and think and improvise, who had to use every inch of the ingenuity they had been given, and to develop an ingenuity that they didn't know they had got! They alone, thought Lynn now, could stand upright without a crutch, responsible for themselves and others. And she, Lynn Marchmont, well educated, clever, having done a job that needed brains and close application, was now rudderless, devoid of resolution, yes, hateful word: drifting. . . .

The people who had stayed at home, Rowley, for instance—But at once Lynn's mind dropped from vague generalities to the immediately personal. Herself and Rowley. That was the problem, the real problem—the only problem. Did she really want to marry Rowley?

Slowly the shadows lengthened to twilight and dusk. Lynn sat motionless, her chin cupped in her hands on the outskirts of a small copse on the hillside, looking down over the valley. She had lost count of time, but she knew that she was strangely reluctant to go home to the White House. Below her, away to the left, was Long Willows. Long Willows, her home if she married Rowley.

If! It came back to that—if!—A bird flew out of the wood with a startled cry like the cry of an angry child. A billow of smoke from a train went eddying up in the sky forming as it did so a giant question mark.

Shall I marry Rowley? Do I want to marry Rowley? Did I ever want to marry Rowley? Could I bear not to marry Rowley?

The train puffed away up the valley, the smoke quivered and dispersed. But the question mark did not fade from Lynn's mind.

She had loved Rowley before she went away. "But I've come home changed," she thought. "I'm not the same Lynn."

A line of poetry floated into her mind. "Life and the world and mine own self are changed. . . ."

And Rowley? Rowley hadn't changed. Rowley was where she had left him four years ago.

Did she want to marry Rowley? If not, what did she want? Twice cracked in the copse behind her and a man's voice cursed as he pushed his way through.

She cried out, "David!" "Lynn!" He looked amazed as he came crashing through the undergrowth. "What in the name of fortune are you doing here?"

He had been running and was slightly out of breath. "I don't know. Just thinking—sitting and thinking." She laughed uncertainly. "I suppose—it's getting very late."

"Haven't you any idea of the time?" She looked down vaguely at her wrist-watch.

"It's stopped again. I disorganize watches." "More than watches!" David said. "It's the electricity in you. The vitality. The life."

He came up to her, and vaguely disturbed, she rose quickly to her feet. "It's getting quite dark. I must hurry home. What time is it, David?"

"Quarter past nine. I must run like a hare. I simply must catch the 9:20 train to London." "I didn't know you had come back here!" "I had to get some things from Furrowbank. But I must catch this train. Rosaleen's alone in the flat—and she gets the jitters if she's alone at night in London."

"In a service flat?" Lynn's voice was scornful. David said sharply: "Fear isn't logical. When you've suffered from blast—"

Lynn was suddenly ashamed—contrite. She said: "I'm sorry. I'd forgotten."

With sudden bitterness David cried out: "Yes, it's soon forgotten—all of it. Back to safety! Back to tameness! Back to where we were when the whole bloody show started! Creep into our rotten little holes and play safe again. You, too, Lynn—you're just the same as the rest of them!"

She cried: "I'm not. I'm not. David. I was just thinking—now—"

"Of me?" His quickness startled her. His arm was round her, holding him to her. He kissed her with hot angry lips.

"Rowley Clode?" he said. "That's me. By God, Lynn, you belong to me!"

Then as suddenly as he had taken her, he released her, almost thrusting her away from him. "He'll miss the train."

He ran headlong down the hillside. "David. . . ."

He turned his head, calling back: "I'll ring you when I get to London. . . ."

She watched him running through the gathering gloom, light and athletic and full of natural grace.

Then, shaken, her heart strangely stirred, her mind chaotic, she walked slowly homeward.

She hesitated a little before going on. She shrank from her mother's affectionate welcome, her questions—

Her mother who had borrowed five hundred pounds from people whom she despised.

"We've no right to despise Rosaleen and David," thought Lynn as she went very softly upstairs. "We're just the same. We'd do anything—anything for money."

She stood in her bedroom, looking curiously at her face in the mirror. It was, she thought, the face of a stranger. . . .

And then, sharply, anger shook her. "If Rowley really loved me," she thought, "he'd have got that five hundred pounds for me somehow. He would—he would. He wouldn't let me be humiliated by having to take it from David—David. . . ."

David had said he would ring her when he got to London. Dreams, she thought, could be very dangerous things. . . .

Cat Was Driven To Strong Drink To Obtain Food

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—(P)—The story of a cat that was driven to drink was told to American veterinarians today to point up what they might do toward combating psychoneurosis in humans as well as in animals.

This cat, in the laboratory of Dr. J. H. Masserman of the University of Chicago and Northwestern University, took to alcohol in order to get up courage to do things it didn't like to get food.

Motion pictures of the cat in action were shown to the American Veterinary Medical Society by Dr. Lloyd C. Moss, of Colorado Agricultural and Mechanical College.

The feline first was taught to lift the lid of a box to get food.

Do FALSE TEETH

Rock, Slide or Slip? FASTEETH, an improved powder is sprinkled on upper or lower plates holds false teeth more firmly in place. Do not slide, slip or rock. No gummy goosy, pasty taste or feeling. FASTEETH is alkaline (non-acid). Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Then it was trained to wait for a light to flash or a bell to ring before lifting the lid. Later it was required to close a switch activating the light or bell. Finally the switch was fixed to deliver an electric shock.

The cat disliked the shock but was driven by increasing hunger. A little milk spiked with alcohol was placed within reach. Kitty learned to take a couple of bracers, then bang into the switch and endure the shock to satisfy its hunger.

Since animal pets and humans sometimes react alike, Dr. Moss said, veterinarians who know animal behavior may be able to detect signs of neuroses in pet owners and guide them to psychiatrists or other doctors.

African palm oil, used in processing steel plates, costs about five times what it did before World War 11.

Special Train May Be Run To Cleveland

YBM Considering Plan To Carry WHS Fans to Browns-Rockets Game

A special train to Cleveland on Sunday, September 26, from Washington C. H. is now being considered by the Young Business Men's Committee of the Washington C. H. Chamber of Commerce, it was learned here today.

On that day the Washington C. H. High School Marching Band is slated to perform in Cleveland Stadium with one of its spectacular half-time shows for the benefit of the expected 100,000 Cleveland Browns fans who will turn out for the Browns-Chicago Rockets football game.

Because of the increasing interest of the band followers here, the plan to run a special train to Cleveland was advanced. M. Joseph Casey of Columbus, division passenger agent for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was approached and rates were quoted. The YBM considered the rates too high so Casey came to Washington C. H. Wednesday and after communicating with railroad officials in the main offices, quoted lower rates. The lower rates, which will not be announced unless the plan to send the special train is approved, are set up on the basis of at least 200 adult tickets being sold.

A spokesman for the YBM said the train would leave Washington C. H. about six or six-thirty the morning of the game and would be back about midnight. Because the B & O would use its own lines in reaching Cleveland, the trip would take about six hours. Casey informed members of the committee that a diner would be attached to the train and breakfast would be available to those desiring to eat after they boarded the train. Other meals would be served also.

The lower rates do not permit the B & O train to use the special siding which is about a hundred yards from the stadium, Casey said. Only one railroad has rights on the siding so the special train will unload passengers at Union Station in Cleveland—a short walk from the stadium.

The YBM spokesman said he didn't think there would be any trouble getting 200 adult tickets sold should the committee decide to go through with its plans. The band might also make the trip on the train and that would account for about half the tickets which would have to be sold, the spokesman added.

Homer Watson Coe Dies at Residence

Homer Watson Coe passed away suddenly at his home in Bookwalter at 10 A. M. Wednesday.

Mr. Coe lived in Bookwalter all of his life and has worked mostly at the Cleon C. Coe Grocery store there. He worked for several years in Springfield and was an assistant mail carrier on a Jeffersonville rural route while working in the store.

Mr. Coe's survivors are his widow, Maude Rumer Coe; his daughter Mrs. J. Roger Wright of Springfield, and a granddaughter.

The body was taken to the Morrow Funeral Home Wednesday morning and will be taken to the Bookwalter residence at 3 P. M. Thursday where friends may call until the funeral which will be held at the residence at 2 P. M. Saturday.

Rev. Clarence P. Miller of the Jeffersonville Methodist Church will be in charge of the ceremonies.

Burial will be in the family lot in the Jeffersonville Fairview Cemetery.

See Shortage In Safe Antifreeze

The National Automobile Dealers Association today issued a warning that safe antifreeze products will again be in short supply during the approaching cold months. Owners of motor vehicles were advised to contact dealers in anti-freeze products without delay.

"From all that can be learned," said the statement, "there is again a likelihood that the shortage of satisfactory antifreeze products may result in many deleterious compounds flooding the market. Preparations of this type can have a ruinous effect on cooling systems."

County Courts

ASKS $588.40 DAMAGES

The Empire State Insurance Company of Columbus has filed suit in Fayette Common Pleas Court against C. D. Hill, doing business as the Hill Distributing Co. of Columbus, Phil B. Sims of Mansfield and Wayne and Vivian Monahan of Route 1, Washington C. H., asking damages in the amount of $588.40.

The plaintiff states that on July 8, 1948, a truck driven by Hill and Sims collided with a truck driven by Wayne and Vivian Monahan causing the Monahan vehicle to crash into the building of Edwin R. and Ruth S. Schnell at 917 Clinton Avenue, causing damage of $588.40.

The plaintiff reported that the Schnells carried insurance on the building and that it paid the damages. The company is now asking the defendants to pay the amount of the damages and pay the costs of the suit. The return day has been set for August 30 and the answer day for September 18.

The suit was filed by the plaintiff's attorneys, Wiles and Douchette of Columbus.

TWO DECREES GRANTED

Common Pleas Judge Harry M. Rankin has granted a divorce in the case of Ray Fogleman vs. Ethel M. Fogleman on a charge of gross neglect of duty.

In the divorce case of Essie Grimm vs. Frank Grimm, the plaintiff was awarded a decree by Judge Rankin. The plaintiff also received all of the household goods and the defendant was ordered to pay "reasonable alimony."

CASE DISMISSED

The divorce suit of Edna Merritt vs. Alva Merritt has been dismissed upon application of the plaintiff in the Common Pleas Court.

Chillicothe Police Hold Greenfielder

Marvin Spangler, 21, of Greenfield was being held in the Chillicothe jail today on charges of reckless operation of a motor vehicle after he was arrested at his home Wednesday.

Spangler was observed by Chillicothe police cruisers speeding north within the city and they gave chase. Spangler tried to get away and Officer Charles Drummond fired at the tires of the speeding car. After a chase of 11½ miles, Spangler wrecked his car near Lattasville and was returned to the Chillicothe Hospital for treatment. Before he could be removed to the jail he walked from the hospital unnoticed. He was rearrested at his home later and returned to jail.

Chief of Police A. R. Poole stated that Spangler would be questioned as to why he ran when police approached him.

Rainfall Occurs Over Large Area

Rainfall was general over much of the county Wednesday and while only .13 of an inch fell in this city, the precipitation in some parts of the county was several times this amount, and did much toward helping mature the corn, soybeans and other crops.

Some areas escaped with merely a sprinkle, and in still other small areas, no rain of consequence fell.

Several thundershowers swept the county during the day.

$1,500,000 TB Christmas Seals On The Way

Fayette County Group Preparing For $4000 Drive This Year

There is activity already on the Christmas seal drive of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association.

A million and a half seals are already on the way from national headquarters to Fayette County for sale here, Paul Strevey, secretary of the group, said Wednesday.

The picture on the seal shows a boy seated before an open fireplace which is decorated and prepared to receive Santa Claus. The center of the seal is occupied by the bright flames. A boy, in red pajamas is on the left of the fire, while on the right is the emblem of the National Tuberculosis Association also in red. Above the fire are the words "Merry Christmas" and the whole picture is framed by a dark blue field.

Other supplies for the Christmas drive now being prepared in the Record-Herald job shop include envelopes and letterheads.

Goal for the drive in Fayette County has been set at $4000, somewhat above that of last year.

WHS Registration To Close Friday

Washington C. H. High School Principal Stephen Brown reported Thursday that registration of new students and students not previously registered was "fair" Wednesday, the first day set aside expressly for those students, but expected more would be in his office Thursday afternoon and Friday.

"All students affected by the registration rules should make an effort to get in during the hours set aside," Brown said.

The principal will be in his office from 9 A. M. until noon and from 1 until 4 P. M. Friday. The office will also be open Friday night between 7 and 9 for the benefit of those who cannot make it during the day.

Students are asked to use the North North Street entrance of WHS.

Claim He Bought

The American did so, and received the car at the London dealer's price, he asserted.

However, Studebaker officials insisted the list price on Wells' model was $1,861, here and abroad. What the pilot must have paid, they added, was that amount with a foreign dealer's handling charge of $14 tacked on.

The $2,387 figure, they suggested, might have been the cost of a higher-priced Studebaker model in this country.

While such transactions have been completed before, a company spokesman went on, they are intended for diplomats and other Americans stationed abroad. They may buy their new cars in this country through foreign dealers.

but do so with the intention of using them outside the limits of the United States.

He said the London dealer must have assumed Wells wanted to use the car in Great Britain.

The spokesman also declared he did not understand how Wells could have seen the car on display in London. Dealers there have had no models for that purpose in months, he said.

Farewell Rites

the Red Sox, and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, of Baltimore, where Ruth grew up as an orphan and first got the feel of a baseball mitt.

Also among the honorary pallbearers were New York's Mayor William O'Dwyer and a long list of friends, ordinary fans and ball players.

While Ruth's candle-lit casket lay at Yankee Stadium—from late Tuesday until midnight and throughout the day yesterday—a steady stream of mourners filed through the rotunda at the rate of 6,000 an hour.

Police officials said it was the greatest such demonstration in New York City for a public figure since Rudolph Valentino's funeral here in 1926.

Many of those who moved past the coffin—some of them crying openly, others moving their lips in prayer—were fans who had seen the Babe in his hey-day as a ballplayer.

Others were youngsters who never had seen Ruth in action but knew his storied fame. Many of the boys in the line of admirers wore baseball uniforms.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler led a group of sports notables to visit the stadium. Weeping, Chandler stood beside Ruth's coffin with an arm about the shoulders of his 14-year-old son, Daniel.

"I wanted my son to see the Babe," Chandler said later. "He was a great inspiration to our kids."

Other joining Chandler in paying tribute to Ruth at the stadium included Will Harridge, president of the American League; Roy McGillicuddy, vice-president of the Philadelphia Athletics; Daniel Topping, president and co-owner of the New York Yankees; George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees, and Hank Greenberg, former star of the Detroit Tigers and Pittsburgh Pirates.

Scores of youngsters, as they passed the coffin, dropped poems in praise of the Babe.

Three small boys from the Bronx brought a bouquet of flowers. With it was a card, reading: "With deepest sympathy, your little pals."

The Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mine in Idaho, one of the great zinc and silver producers, was discovered in 1886, when a prospector's burro stumbled.

Fayette Men On Huge Carrier

'Coral Sea' Now On Practice Cruise

Two Fayette County boys are serving aboard the USS Coral Sea, one of Uncle Sam's newest aircraft carriers, which is currently participating in the annual Midshipmen's Practice Cruise.

Forrest D. Whitten, quartermaster, third class, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Whitten of 229 Green Street. Whitten enlisted in the navy following his graduation from Washington C. H. High School in 1945 and agreed to stay until his twenty-first birthday. He will be discharged in October, his mother said.

A signalman as far as his duties are concerned, Whitten served in China for several months following his boot training at Great Lakes, Ill. When he returned from China he was sent to the naval air station at Orange Texas, where he served until he was assigned to the Coral Sea before her commissioning on October 1 last year.

The other Fayette County boy, Kenneth H. Bogard, is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conrad of 527 Eastern Avenue. Bogard, who attended Bloomingburg High School, has been in the navy for two years and seven months. He intends to make navy life his career, his grandmother said.

Bogard took his boot training at Great Lakes, Ill., and was then sent to Norfolk, Va., where he was assigned to a destroyer. He also has been on the Coral Sea since it was commissioned. He expects to be home on leave in September.

The Coral Sea is the third and latest addition to the fleet in the battle-carrier class. Together with her two sister ships, the Midway and Franklin D. Roosevelt, she is one of the world's largest aircraft carriers.

The ship is named for the Battle of the Coral Sea, history's first major naval engagement in which the fighting was carried on solely by aircraft from opposing carriers.

During the Midshipmen cruise this summer, the ship has visited the ports of Lisbon, Gofe Juan on the French Riviera and Gibraltar while touring other Portuguese and Western Mediterranean waters. The Coral Sea has recently been engaged in air exercises, operating from Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, after which she will return to Norfolk to disembark the Midshipmen.

Can Corn Promptly For Best Results

Canning corn is like carrying home ice cream on a hot day, says the Rural Home Editor of Capper's Farmer. You have to get both to the destination quickly—or you lose!

"Getting corn picked and into jars quickly means the difference between keeping and spoiling," she writes in the August issue of the nationally-circulated farm magazine. "Start canning an hour after picking if you can. The sooner the better."

"Don't gather too many ears at one time," she advises, "or spoilage will begin before you get corn processed. One-half bushel is a good quantity to work with at a time. This will fill 6 to 8 pints."
